

CHAKRADVENTURE - DAY 7

The Crown Chakra: I UNDERSTAND

The Crown Chakra is one of the higher centers of energy in our body, located on the top of our head, pretty much the famous "tunnel", the web, the CHANNEL that connects all living things spiritually and tangibly. Billy Carson (4Bidden Knowledge) just blew my mind telling us that the connections in our brain are the same as an AI or computer program. So how do we take over the Matrix? When we focus and entertain this connection, we start discovering abilities and knowledge coming from nowhere or, better said... from NOW, HERE. Being at the right place at the right time. Meeting someone you were thinking about. Making up a totally new recipe. Experiencing and, most importantly, becoming attentive to synchronicities with admiration and gratitude every day of our life is a huge key to unlock the magic and understand the greater picture.

You are the key of the doors you want to open ♥

Who are these Gods and Goddesses? How do we find our truth between religions, legends and history? The border is thin between spirit and human identity... Here is a video about my first encounter with our lightbeing friends, from last summer in France. It is also in the Angel Pack!!

<https://youtu.be/eFPOB07ka0c>

My first E.T. contact in 2015

CHAKRADVENTURE - DAY 7

The Crown Chakra: I UNDERSTAND

I hope you are having an amazing week and, as we are getting up high in our beautiful CHAKRADVENTURE, I'd like to share with you this picture and story. This is the exact moment I truly started feeling on a "spiritual journey".

I had wanted to go to Peru all my life, and THE DREAM of my dreams was to go to Machu Picchu. I wanted to walk on the sacred mountain of the Incas more like anything else in the world. So I did. When I got there, before sunrise, it was all dark and foggy. I was climbing rocks and steps in the mountain but I could barely see where I was going, surrounded by the neblina and the clouds. At sunrise, the clouds started dissipating slowly, opening up the view like angels offering me the most wonderful present one could ever wish for. It was magic, stunning, breathtaking... and I felt so proud for doing this all by myself.

So I was there, ecstatic in happiness, admiring this incredible beauty, when I started experiencing this very uncomfortable vertigo feeling: " This is it... and now what? Once I leave this place of wonders, what will be my dream? What will be my purpose?" I just wanted to stay there and enjoy the view forever when a little voice within whispered to me:

"This is just the beginning".

Un nouveau monde

Sur les traces des Incas

You can find all these travels stories in my books and articles, in the "We Are One" Library!! The second time I heard this story, was during the Own Your Future Challenge with Dean Graziosi and Tony Robbins. Trent Shelton was telling us about his journey and how he lived pretty much the exact same experience, in a different context, and I thought, really, the love and presence of PachaMama for her children is incredible. We are all cared for and encouraged to care for each other. This is my lesson for today. She is always there, and when we align with our destiny, we also attract our tribe. It is a work of every day to transcend our weaknesses and doubts, the parts of ourselves that we are fighting. Being able to question our patterns is a proof of courage as well. I love this song from Beautiful Chorus. Listen to it now!!

"Pacha Mama, I'm coming home, to the place, where I belong"